Few engagements announced this spring made one doubt if, after all, June would lose its reputation as a month of brides. The wedding yesterday demonstrated to the fashionable world that even a June bride can keep a secret and that there may be a score or more events to take place without formal announcement. None, however, could be of more interest for, owing to the prominence and popularity of Miss Hazel McCurry and James Parker, their marriage holds foremost place on the summer calendar. Only the immediate relatives were present at the ceremony, which took place at the home of the bride's brother, R. W. McCurry, of 811 North First street at six o'clock. It was a charming scene, the living room, where Reverend Henry Martyn Campbell read the service, being effectively decorated in pepper boughs, pale pink and white oleanders. Miss McCurry, who was unattended, made a charming bride, in an exquisitely dainty gown of white marquisette trimmed with net and fillet lace. She carried an arm bouquet of roses. The dining-room was also in pink and white. The bride's table had an artistic centerpiece of roses, with ivory knots of tulle intermingled, while miniature cupid and doves added to the decorative effect. Mr. and Mrs. Parker are passing their honeymoon at the Grand Canyon. They will return to town the latter part of the week. Mrs. Parker, since her return from St. Joseph seven months ago, has been a favorite in Phoenix's smart set, whose members will be delighted that she will reside here permanently. She is an unusually attractive young woman and a decided social favorite. She has a cordial gracious manner and a most pleasing personality. One of her greatest charms is a sweet soprano voice. Mr. Parker belongs to one of the oldest and best known families in the state. He is the son of Captain P. P. Parker and a brother of Mrs. Cy Byrne, Clay Parker and Earl Parker. He has lived in Arizona practically all his life and his friends are legion. He is a member of the Arizona club and exceedingly popular. He is associated in business with a wholesale plumbing supply company.

The smart set will be interested to learn of marriage to Mrs. Elsie Tausig to S. G. Fleischman, which took place in San Francisco

Thursday. Immediately after the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Fleischman left for Europe. They will remain abroad for an indefinite period. Mrs. Fleischman is one of the most prominent young matrons in California society, is brilliant and accomplished and a favorite with all who know her. Mr. Fleischman is a well-known pianist and composer. He is a brother of Mrs. Leo Goldman, and every spring it has been his custom to pass a few weeks in Phoenix. He has countless admirers here as well as on the coast.

Miss Ellen Carpenter, the attractive daughter of Judge and Mrs. Lewis T. Carpenter, who has been in Texas at school, arrived Friday for the summer's vacation. The Carpenters, who have been domiciled on Latham street for the past few months, have leased the Hitchens' residence on North Central avenue for the coming season. They will move in July, going later to Iron Springs for a short time. In August they will motor through the northern part of the state. Miss Inez Carpenter, who was their guest this winter, will accompany them north.

At an informal tea at the home of Mrs. Fred C. Hurst, the Bettines club held its last meeting of the season Thursday afternoon. The living rooms were fragrant with American Beauty roses that were arranged with pleasing effect. Besides the members there were present Mrs. John Henry Coles, Mrs. T. J. Johnson and Mrs. B. C. Webster.

Miss Elizabeth Jones a popular member of the junior set will not be a debutante the coming season but will remain in school at least another year. She will leave shortly for California and in the autumn will register at Huntington hall. In her honor several delightful affairs have been given recently one of the most charming being the dance with which Miss Ruby Pascoe entertained Friday evening at her home on North Second avenue. American Beauty and La France roses decorated with artistic effect. An enjoyable feature of the occasion was the program comprising a series of readings by Miss Jones, piano numbers by Miss Pascoe and solos by George Luhrs.

The Johnson orchestra furnished the dance music. The guest list included Miss Jones, Miss Jessie Higley, Miss Aileen Ganz, Miss Lillian Griffin, Miss Ruth Goldberg, Miss Dorothy Pickrell, Miss Helen Plath, Miss Fern Johnson, Miss Ethel McDermott, Miss Edith Scofield, Miss Helen O'Malley, Miss Adeline Plath, Miss Kathryn Wright, Miss Ruth Benedict, Miss Mary Wheat, Miss Mattie Doster, Miss Virginia Chesney, Miss Eugenia Pierce, Miss Thelma Francis, Miss Dorothy Slayback, James Higley, Tucker Plath, Harold Goldberg, Corbin Davidson, Garnet McCaleb, George Hamilton, Lester DeMund, George Luhrs, John Newcomer, Russell Penabody, Paul Sweeney, Harry Slocum, Kenneth Comstock, Smith Pickrell, Chester Goldberg, Lloyd Jones, Forrest Betts, Chester Munson, Earl Galpin, Charles Tweed, Joseph Thorne and Ralph Brown.

Miss Gladys Dicus and Miss Edith Dicus of Douglas are the guests of State Treasurer and Mrs. David F. Johnson of North Seventh avenue. In compliment to their guests Mr. and Mrs. Johnson gave a prettily appointed dinner Wednesday evening. Sweet peas, artistically arranged formed the attractive centerpiece for the table about which were gathered Dr. and Mrs. Robert R. Brownfield, Mr. and Mrs. Lebbens Chapman, and Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Marvin.

The Neighborhood club met Thursday evening with Mrs. C. H. Davidson of South Twelfth avenue. Mrs. W. C. Barnes of Washington, D. C., was the guest of honor.

One of the delightful events of the week was the picnic supper Friday evening at Riverside park enjoyed by Mr. and Mrs. Sidney J. Ross, Mr. and Mrs. William M. Seabury, Mr. and Mrs. Maitland Davies, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hildebran, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Melzer, Mr. and

WORSHIPPERS OF THE DEVIL

The Course of the Mohammedans Toward This Ancient Sect Will Be One of Greater Tolerance Than Formerly

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 6.—From Mosul comes the news that the new Vali has adopted a conciliatory policy towards the Yezidis, or Devil-worshippers, who are numerous in that province, and especially in the Djebel Sidjar district. These strange people have suffered much from Moslem intolerance during the last 50 years. In Abdul Hamid's reign efforts were made forcibly to convert them; their places of worship were closed and several of their gilt images of peacocks, whereby they typify their deity the devil, whom they regard as a repentant fallen angel who has been permitted to create the present universe, and whom they worship under the title of "Malek Taus" (the Peacock King), were carried off.

In 1908 the irregulars employed by the constitutional government against Ibrahim Pasha of Viranshehr attacked Djebel Sidjar and committed horrible excesses, violating women and children, and suffocating scores of wretched fugitives by lighting bonfires at the mouths of the caves in which they had taken refuge. So reduced were the Yezidis that some of them sought admission into the Armenian Gregorian church in the hope of obtaining foreign protection. One community pawned its gilt peacock to an unbeliever, who made away with it, and when the Yezidis, after meeting their engagements, asked for its return, explained that the "Malek Taus" (Peacock King) was really a "Malek Taus," or Peacock Angel, and had flown away, an explanation which the devil worshippers received in a very critical spirit.

Suleiman Nazif Bey, the present Vali of Mosul, has now assured the Yezidis that they will be recognized as a distinct religious sect by the government, which had hitherto insisted on treating them as Moslems, and will suffer no molestation in the exercise of their creed. He has also restored their peacocks, which were carried away as were the gods of the nations whom Sennacherib and Nebuchadnezzar conquered, but it is not known whether the peacock which so mysteriously took wing has yet been recovered.

WHAT MAY HAPPEN TO MME. CAILLAUX

Slayer of Calmette May Be Put on Good Behavior

PARIS, June 6.—The "Aurore" states that M. Labori is retiring from the defense of Mme. Caillaux. But the eminent counsel denies that this is so, and he has asked for an audience with the procureur to discuss the question of the date of the trial, which it is now believed will not take place before July.

Palm Beach Cloth Suit

This is one of the best summer garments we have ever found. It is lighter and cooler than anything else that you can wear in public, and at the same time it is a good looking suit, which is always important, and somewhat unusual in warm weather clothing. The best thing about it—aside from its comfort—is the way it holds its shape.

ELOPING TUTOR

ST PETERSBURG, June 6.—A young student named Rosey has eloped with the only daughter of his employer, a millionaire, Baron Maas. Rosey had been acting as tutor to the baron's twelve-year-old son at their country place in Southwest Russia, and was much liked by all. Last Sunday night he and the Baroness' daughter, who is only seventeen, ran away. The baron immediately informed the police and officially forbade the marriage.

Rosey's parents here have been questioned but know nothing. Despite a wide search the eloping couple have not been found.
